EVENTS IN THE EAST.

O'Donovan Rossa Credited with Having made a Truthful Statement.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE IDLE.

Alleged Murder of a Revenue Collector in West Virginia—Several Interesting Items that have not Before Appeared in Print in this Section.

Backing Up O'Donovan Rossa

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—Captain William Cusack, a well-known member of the Irish party, said yesterday, in speaking of the charges made by O'Donovan Rossa that $100,000 of the Irish fund had been misused, that while there might be some truth in the accusations it was not well to discuss the matter publicly. "If any man is convicted of misusing money subscribed for our cause," said he, "I am in favor of putting him away quietly. These [illegible] discussions hurt the cause. I have no doubt Rossa has proof to substantiate his charges, [illegible] back up what he says, as he is generally right in exposing such frauds. You must understand that Treasurer Egan is not accused personally of anything crooked. He was deceived by men in this country, who proposed capital [illegible] and got away with the money. A prominent member of the land league recently arrived in Ireland, said that it was understood that members of the American Clan-na-Gael society had secured the $100,000 from Egan in Paris. They wanted to use it for revolutionary purposes, and it was never accomplished. Egan, however, having given the money at all."

The New Cuban Leader.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—Emilio Nunez, a colonel in the Cuban army during the last insurrection, in speaking yesterday of General Bonachea, who recently arrived in New York and issued proclamations asking for co-operation in a contemplated uprising of the Cuban people, said that he was regarded by his countrymen as an earnest and active officer in the insurgent cause, but more valued for his zeal and bravery than for his ability and judgment. Nunez says that Cuba would accept a revolution with ardor, on account of the failure of the Spanish government to fulfill its promises. The people would hail a rebellion as a deliverance from the evils which surround them. The frauds and corruption in the Spanish administration, he thought, had driven the people into a disposition to redress their wrongs at any price, and that the dissatisfaction was so general as to cause a disturbance of the social, political and commercial character of the people, and that an outbreak at any time would be impossible.

The Author of "Kit" Dead.

BALTIMORE, July 17.—Edward Spencer, one of the most brilliant newspaper men of Maryland, died this evening, after an illness of ten days, of nervous prostration, aged about fifty years. Mr. Spencer was for several years an assistant editor of the Baltimore Sun and also contributed to the New York Sun and New York World, as well as to the Washington Capital. He was a fluent and graceful writer, and his letters in the famous papers were always welcomed by the reading public. He was the author of the "Life of Hon. Thomas F. Bayard." He also engaged in writing plays, the most popular of which was "Kit, the Arkansas Traveler." He wrote a play for Mr. John McCullough under the title of "Narcissus," but in consequence of a disagreement it was never produced. Mr. Spencer was a widower and leaves several children.

A Pool Box Seized.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Two deputy sheriffs seized a pool box at the Palmer house to-night within a few hours after it had been brought from the race track. The box was in charge of William R. Armstrong and Ira E. Bride, official pool sellers, and had been placed under a table in the dining room at the time the custodians were eating supper. The levy was made at the suit of John W. Conley, who has a claim of $2000 against Armstrong and Bride for alleged breach of contract. The box was found to contain $75,000, and a few distracts for $6000 and [illegible] for the amount the box was returned by the officers.

The Tornado.

MILWAUKEE, July 22.—One of the victims of the cyclone was Mrs. Grace F. [illegible] of Dodgeville. In the collapse of her house, which was struck by a tornado, her mother was also reported killed, and a small boy near Dodgeville. Buildings were blown down in every direction, and the crops were prostrated.

ST. PAUL, July 22.—The middle belt of Minnesota from Mankato east to the Mississippi river, was swept by a tornado Saturday, when six persons were killed and nearly one hundred injured. The estimated damage to the crop is about $500,000.

CHICAGO, July 22.—At 3 o'clock to-night the weather was very hot and sultry. It was followed by a cold wave, and about midnight a funnel-shaped cloud passed from east to west over the city. It is believed that the cyclone is to the lake is all that saved the city from a frightful visitation.

Child Labor in New Jersey.

TRENTON, July 18.—Child Labor Inspector Fell spent to-day inspecting the potteries and brick yards in this city and to-night he left for Hudson county. He found children employed in a few of the potteries and in brickyards, but in others there were none, the employes having dispensed with the services of the children about the 1st of July. He found a general disposition among manufacturers to comply with the law, especially where the owner of a workshop or factory exercised personal supervision over it. He found the children, however, indisposed to quit work.

Church Bells Silenced.

ST. LOUIS, July 21.—The Pilgrim church's chime of bells has at length been silenced for the night, through long litigation was required. Several persons living in the neighborhood brought a suit, but could obtain no more from the supreme court than an order that the belfry should be boarded shut. The court of appeals now decides that there shall be no ringing between 9 P. M. and 7 A. M. The opinion is expressed that "the striking of the church bell at night is a useless noise and a nuisance."

Pennsylvania's Legislature.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The Times has the following: The house at Harrisburg had nothing to do in session yesterday and the senate would do nothing, and so nothing was done but to adjourn. The houses will meet again to-day and do nothing at the rate of ten dollars a day, and thus the do-nothing programme promises to continue indefinitely at the expense of the tax-payers. If the legislature fails to agree to any apportionment bill, it should at least agree to adjourn and stop the useless expense.

Paupers Sent Back.

NEW YORK, July 21.—A French pauper was sent back to England to-day on the steamer England, and [illegible] pauper was returned on the City of [illegible] to-day by the emigration commissioners, who also shipped a man, his wife and four children on the steamer England, because they were "assisted" emigrants and had no means of support.

Cable Enterprise.

LONDON, July 21.—Alderman Hadley, who will be the next lord mayor of London, is now at Ottawa, Canada, where he represents the American, British and Continental Cable Company. He will soon visit Chicago, and possibly other western cities.

New Jersey Democratic Convention.

JERSEY CITY, July 17.—The democratic state committee held a meeting here to-day and agreed to hold the state convention, which nominates a candidate for governor, on September 13, at Trenton.

A Successful Newspaper Man.

CHICAGO, July 23.—H. A. Hoffman, the ex-clergyman of Bloomington, has run a newspaper in that city with such success as to secure a horsewhipping at the hands of Mrs. Pritchard.

The Trenton "Times" Sued Again.

TRENTON, N. J., July 1.—Senator John Carpenter, of Hunterdon county, to-day began a civil libel suit for $10,000 damages against the Trenton Times Publishing company.

RAILROAD MATTERS.

IN FAVOR OF THE COMPANY.

NEW YORK, July 17.—In the action of the New York, Lake Erie and Western railroad against Jas. [illegible], Judge Jones, in the United States circuit court, to-day, handed down a decision denying the motion of the defendant for a new trial. This action was tried in this city at the April circuit and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff of $1,496,822.66, it appearing in the case set forth that the defendant was indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of [illegible] 17, with interest from the 8th of July, in consequence of so much money received by the defendant before that time for the use of the plaintiff. The defendant denied that he was indebted to the plaintiff in any amount whatever. He claimed, on the contrary, that the Erie company was indebted to him in the sum of $800,000 and that the plaintiff had no right or interest in the claims sought to be recovered, except by assignment from the Erie company.

A HEAVY MORTGAGE.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—The Susquehanna and [illegible] Railway company to-day filed in the Recorder's office of the county a mortgage for $4,500,000 in favor of the Central Trust Company of New York, for the equipment and construction of a railway from Sunbury to Hancock, Maryland, a distance of one hundred and thirty-five miles. The mortgage has now been entered in Northumberland, Snyder, Juniata, Huntingdon and Fulton counties, the counties through which the proposed road will pass in this state.

MEXICO.

Cholera at Oaxaca.

GALVESTON, TEX., July 21.—The Two Republics, an American paper published in Mexico, a generally reliable and intelligent journal, has made the semi-official and unwelcome announcement of cholera in the state of Oaxaca. The journal gives no details, which it ought to have done, nor does it state the point clear as to whether the malady is the true Asiatic cholera or merely a sporadic local variety. If it is only a disease of cholera morbus type, the paper should [illegible] it may be remarked [illegible] ground for the assertion that it was genuine Asiatic disease, although it is a time [illegible] become easy and unreasonably be looked [illegible] together with the fact of rumors having [illegible] several months ago of cholera in the eastern portion of Mexico, makes the matter at least suspicious. The large towns of Mexico are now connected by rail, and if cholera exists in Oaxaca, and if it is the contagious portable disease it is represented by some of the doctors and medical writers, it may not be long before the horrors now witnessed in Egypt will be repeated on this side of the sea.

ECUADOR.

[illegible], the revolutionary leader in Ecuador, has invited the people of seven local governments to take steps to secure an efficient administration without chosen from the Mediterranean.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bedbugs. 15c.

CRIMINAL.

A MINER SHOT BY HIS PARTNER.

ALTA, COL., July 19.—While working in the tunnel on their claim this morning, two miners, Elmer Smith and Joseph Frost, got into a quarrel. Both men started for the mouth of the tunnel to secure their weapons, but Smith, who was too fast in the advance, seized his weapon, turned quickly upon Frost and fired, sending a ball into his mouth and out through the back of his head. Frost fell dead instantly, and Smith surrendered himself to the sheriff's officers. Frost has been a hunter, fighter and a miner, and when under the influence of liquor was somewhat quarrelsome. He had shot several persons before, and it was probably a knowledge of this fact that urged Smith to rapid action as necessary to his own safety. The claim which these men were working is located on Quandary mountain, and has recently proved to be very valuable. The general opinion is that Smith acted solely in self-defense.

A MURDERER CAPTURED.

DENVER, July 19.—William Moryer was arrested yesterday for the murder of James Levy in Tucson, Arizona, about four years ago. The deed for which the arrest was made is a cold-blooded murder. Moryer is a sporting man and ran a gambling house at Tucson, having for a partner the notorious Jim Levy, who killed Harrison at Cheyenne in 1877. The partners quarreled one day over business matters. Both were desperate men and each feared the other. They separated, however, without coming to blows, agreeing to meet the next day and try to have an amicable adjustment of their difficulties. Levy went one way and Moryer the other, Levy acting in good faith, Moryer intent upon murder. He walked around the block quickly, came up behind Levy and without a word of warning shot him through the back, killing him instantly. Moryer was arrested, placed in jail, but before he could be tried for the dastardly killing, made his escape, and has been ever since a fugitive from justice, with a price of $500 upon his head.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

WHEELING, July 21.—Revenue Collector Duval and his son Walter sat at the window of the custom house at noon, when a man appeared on an outside street, drew a revolver and fired at them, the ball passing between them. No reason is known for the attempted murder.

THE POLK CITY MURDERERS.

CHICAGO, July 22.—In a cornfield in Audubon county, Iowa, has been found a valise containing clothing belonging to the Polk City murderers. It will make its appearance in the coming trial as a witness against its owners.

ENGLAND.

BODIES RECOVERED.

LONDON, July 21.—Five more bodies of victims of the steamship Daphne disaster at Glasgow have been recovered, making the number of bodies so far found 152. According to a corrected list of the victims only one body is now missing.

HUNGARY.

TRIAL OF THE JEWS.

LONDON, July 21.—In the trial of the Jews at Nyiregyhaza, Hungary, Julia Vanis and the coachman withdraw their evidence, which was favorable to the prisoners. They admitted that they had been threatened with death by the populace. They will be prosecuted for perjury.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

General Joe Johnston takes the ground that the Virginia laws against dueling are too severe to be carried into execution. If this be so the public sentiment of Virginia is not in harmony with that of the civilized world.

The Tribune and the World of New York are amusing themselves and their readers by applying choice epithets to each other. The World calls the Tribune "very old," and the Tribune retorts by calling the World "new—very new—in fact babyish." But this is "metropolitan journalism."

The New York Times has after inspection, discovered that dwellings capable of containing 65,000 people, or 10,000 families, are now in process of construction in that city. The city is getting to be like Paris—a city of apartment houses. Rents are becoming more reasonable and landlords are on the lookout for good tenants at cheap rates.

The Princess Louise lately came into the presence of her mother in a beautiful crimson dress, with stockings to match. The queen asked the princess if she was not aware that no one was allowed to come in her presence with colored stockings on. Her majesty then ordered the princess to her room for necessary renovation. This is related as a fact and a sign that the royal palace is a sort of a lunatic asylum.

Ex-surgeon General Hammond's attempt to prove in the next number of the North American Review the unfitness of woman for equal participation with men in public affairs by reason of her smaller brain may be successful, but conviction in this matter has of late been somewhat shaken by the triumphs of a few women who, unwelcomed, have pushed themselves into the halls of learning, and overcome the whole number of male students there.

The latest stone on the monument which the queen is erecting to the memory of John Brown is inscribed: "In affectionate remembrance of the beloved friend of the queen, 'Victoria.'" Whether the additional stones are to contain more ardent tones of endearment is not stated, but the sample given is sufficient to show the queen in a most preposterous guise. Says the Chicago Times: If she persists in this sickening sentimentality over the loss of an ignorant servant, the irreverent subjects who used to call her "the Hempress Brown" will presently dub her "the Widow Brown."

PENULTIMATE JOKES OF JULY.

A sad ndef: A wild woman has been captured near Louisville. She had probably read somewhere that the ice cream crop was blighted.—Indianapolis Journal.

Logic: A French investigator has discovered that the character of a person's dreams depend upon the great measure on which side the sleeper lies. The dreams of a person, then, who habitually lies on both sides, must be very much mixed.—Boston Transcript.

English social notes: Some people have such a pleasant way of putting things. "Now, do let me propose you as a member!" "But suppose they black ball me!" "Pooh! Absurd! Why, my dear fellow, there's not a man in the club that knows you, —[illegible]!"—London Punch.

Would not stay down: Cazino thinks he has been poisoned, and has a doctor called. After an examination the physician orders him to take an emetic. "It is useless," replies Cazino; "I have already taken them twice, and they didn't stay down five minutes."—From the French.

Without a clergyman: Teacher—"What do you understand by clergyman?" Pupil—"Without a clergyman." A man who holds a benefice doesn't have to help support the minister. The teacher was sorry that he couldn't sentence his bright pupil to instant death, and secure, that is to say, without the benefit of clergy.—Boston Transcript.

"I am an agnostic!" remarked a young man in swelling accents. "And an agnostic is what?" inquired an elderly gentleman. "An agnostic," replied the fresh youth, in a manner expressive of his pity at his interlocutor's ignorance, "an agnostic is a fellow, you know, who isn't sure of anything." "I see," replied the old gentleman "but how does it happen that you are sure you are an agnostic?"

"A good morning, McGouge, you're just the man I want to see," said old Futon; "how's the market going to be?" "I tell you as a friend, everything is going to boom. This little flurry will be over in a few days and then things are going up. I tell you, old fellow, now is the time to put in." "But Snide, your partner, says the bottom is dropping out of everything." "Snide! Ah, Snide is the bear member of the firm."

EXCERPTS.

The Denver Tribune refers to Bret Harte as a man who went to Europe as an assisted literary emigrant.

Ben Butler's statement that he gave his son a blank check-book when he went to college and that the latter only drew $1200, is calculated to create the impression that the boy is a slick one in a jackpot.

Ex-ary has postponed his libel cyclone for a trip to his western ranche. Perhaps he hopes to find an eligible dueling field for editors there, and to induce the entire editorial fraternity to come out and be killed.

The Philadelphia Press suggests that the democratic national convention next year be held in aberration until after the November election, when, if the democrats do not have the actual naming of a president and vice president, no convention will be needed. "The party," it says, "will vote the regular electoral ticket just as well without a candidate as with one." A suggestion so unique and valuable as this might be addressed to the republicans as well. It would be the most possible return to the method which the fathers intended—viz., that the presidential electors should have an active and not a merely passive duty to perform.

"As the Feller Said."

"As the feller said." What a weight of responsibility is thrown on that phrase. About five men out of six will preface a smart saying with, "as the feller said." Occasionally they vary it with, "as the boy said." It is not uncommon to hear Shakespeare inscribed as a "feller" by somebody who drags into his conversation, "'My kingdom for a horse,' as the feller said," or something equally as rasping to the nerves of the afflicted hearer. "As the feller said" is a sort of apology, as much as to say, "Don't blame me for it; I only repeat what some other feller said." It stands for quotation marks. Your friend knows you know he is using language not original with him, but he cannot tell who the author is, so he advises you that he does not claim it as his own by interjecting "as the feller said." Perhaps the commonest service it does is as a scapegoat for a slang. The man who talks may feel that his ordinary conversation is less correct than yours, he drops a rude or homely expression, and works in "as the feller said" to be his excuse.

Love rules the court, the camp, the grove,
But this we find where'er we rove,
That SOZODONT alone supplies
The dazzling teeth and ruby dyes,
That lend a maiden half the charms
That win her to her lover's arms.

The New Orleans Picayune thinks that the Greek and Hebrew languages are important, as they afford the logical students more opportunities to wrangle over the scriptures.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Instructions Just Issued Regarding the Gauging of Distilled Spirits.

FOLGER'S ORDER ON BONDED WHISKY

Coleman Calls the Hill Investigation a Farce—O Farce in the Eyes of the Country—Payment Refused on Army Checks.

The Gauging of Spirits.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The commissioner of internal revenue has issued a circular in regard to the gauging of spirits in small packages and at an abnormal temperature, which provides as follows: "Hereafter when casks or packages having a capacity not exceeding twenty gallons wine measure, are gauged for entry into a distillery warehouse, or at a fruit distillery, and wanting a half gallon, it shall not be allowed, except when the wantage reaches one full half gallon; that is, unless there is actually one full half gallon out of the package. The same rule will apply as to the wantage on a gallon; that is, no wantage in excess of one-half gallon will be allowed unless the actual wantage reaches a full gallon. When, however, packages of this class are so constructed that their capacity, ascertained from their dimensions, contains a fraction of a gallon other than one-half, actual wantage shall be required in each packages equal to such fraction. If it be less than one-half gallon, or if it exceeds one-half the actual wantage shall be required equal to the excess of the fraction above one-half gallon before such package shall be gauged. In addition to the wantage required in such cases a further wantage of one-half gallon will be allowed when desired, provided the additional wantage fully equals one-half gallon. When packages are used the capacity of which cannot be ascertained by the ordinary method but by the use only of the rod to determine the dimensions, the gauger must ascertain the precise thickness of the material composing the package so as to arrive with entire accuracy at a sure measurement, and from these when obtained he must compute the cubic contents of the package in gallons and the fractions of any gallons. The gauger will decline to gauge casks or packages having a capacity not exceeding twenty gallons, wine measure, and containing spirits the temperature of which has been artificially changed, until the spirits have either regained a point varying not more than one degree Fahrenheit from the standard temperature of sixty degrees Fahrenheit, or a point varying not more than five degrees Fahrenheit from the existing temperature of the open air.

Folger's Whisky Order.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The secretary of the treasury has addressed a letter to the collector of customs at New York in regard to the exportation of bonded whisky. The following is a copy:

A Boston firm has addressed a letter to this department, in which they state a house in Boston exported some months since, in bond to Hamilton, Bermuda, a quantity of whisky of domestic manufacture, which was returned to your port in January last, where it now remains in a bonded warehouse. They have agreed with the holder to buy twenty-five barrels of this whisky delivered in Boston to bond and they ask what course may be lawfully taken in the premises. Guided by the opinion of the United States attorney general, this department holds that articles of growth, product or manufacture of the United States, when exported and reimported under Section 2500, United States revised statute, are not within the purview of the customs warehousing system, and that they can not lawfully be entered under the laws creating that system. This will apply to distilled spirits manufactured in the United States once exported and reimported. Under the section above cited, upon the landing of such spirits the collector of customs will exact the payment of a duty equal to the tax imposed by the internal revenue laws, they will not permit them to be entered for storage in a bonded warehouse, and through failure of other means to obtain the duty they will seize and hold them for the same and all legal expenses of the action. In the case now before the department and spoken of in the beginning of this letter, a warehouse bond has sometimes been taken in good faith and under a mistaken but innocent belief in the legality and regularity thereof, and because of that the spirits to which that bond applies may be dealt with as an exceptional case in accordance with the constitution of a bond.

CHARLES J. FOLGER,
Secretary.

The Hill Investigation.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Coleman, before the Hill investigating committee, said it was a matter of jest in the office of the supervising architect that the prosecution has not been smart enough to procure the essential papers. He said the fact that Hill remained in charge of the official records made the investigation a farce in the eyes of the country, and he asked for his suspension. The chairman said the committee would take the matter under consideration and submit it to the secretary. The committee had no power to suspend Hill. Totten announced that he was prepared to begin the defense in the Philadelphia case. He understood it had been closed for the prosecution. Coleman declared he had on Philadelphia case, or Chicago case, or Cincinnati case; they were all parts of the charge, and he should refuse to regard the case as closed.

The chairman said it was not necessary to repeat the testimony given in the Philadelphia case; in fact, the Chicago and Cincinnati building committees would concede that the same condition of affairs existed in these cases. Coleman replied that the frauds were of a different character. The chairman said the committee would hear any testimony of a character different from that already given in the Philadelphia case, but did not wish to spend weeks in hearing testimony repeated. It would be a work of supererogation. Alexander moved that till he required to put in his testimony. The order was finally made. He also gave notice he would more at the proper time to rule out all evidence touching 15 per cent. contracts. Adjourned.

No Pay in Advance.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The disbursing officers of the national banks and the sub-treasurers have been instructed to refuse payment on any check drawn by the paymaster of the United States army in payment for services to officers or enlisted men, unless the period covered by the payment is stated in such check. This action is taken in compliance with the request of the secretary of war.

A NEW TOWN HEARD FROM.

SPRAGUE, Spokane Co., W. T., July 24.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

A station hereto unknown has more grain to ship this season than any station along the line of the Northern Pacific railroad. Independent of the grain, a large coal mine has been discovered within three quarters of a mile of town. Water has been struck seven feet from the surface. Timber can be had in abundance. Three wagon roads have been laid out to make way for the coming crops to be shipped from this point. A wide from this, a wagon road has been laid out to Medical lake, which far surpasses any road that has been made yet. Cheney will have to give up her laurels now, as she can no longer monopolize the traffic of Medical lake. Independent of this, Stevens is nearer the Big Bend country by several miles than any other town leaving a beautiful road all the way from the N. P. R. R. at this point to the Columbia river.

The grain crop far exceed the expectation of any of the farmers around here.

Shooting is very good here; prairie chickens are plentiful.

Several business places are shortly to be erected. We have already a nice post office, general merchandise store and a saloon, and several others. The outlook for this place is hopeful for a glorious future at no distant day.

"You are to[illegible]" A ghastly, [illegible] at pallor, that is in strange contrast to the ruddy dash of his new neck-tie, passes swiftly over George W. Simpson's face as Beryl McCloskey pens these words, and as they stand there together in the dim half-light of the conservatory, and the soft perfume of the June roses coming through the open window on the sighing breeze that is kissing the sawbuck whose haggard form is sharply outlined against the woodshed, he feels instinctively that she has been making a toy of his affections. The thought is a maddening one, and as it surges through his brain and starts on he returns triply almost to a pause, the agony is so overpowerful that the strong man reels, and would have fallen had not his pants been too tight.

"Do you know what you have said, Beryl?" he asks, bending his face close to hers and looking with a pitiful, pleading, on-on-the-third-base-and-two-out expression into the beautiful brown eyes that were upturned to his. But there is no answer to those husky accents; no warm, responsive, you-may-hold-me-a-little-while-when-we-get-home-from-the-concert gleam. Around the drooping mouth there are hard, tense lines, and on the white brow, that is as fair as the cyclamen leaves scattered over the lawn of Brie Villa, there comes no rosy flush—sweet messenger of love and truthfulness—nothing but the faint, germany odor of home-made bandoline. And as she does not answer him, but stands defiantly, he turns away, and an instant later is lost to view.

"My God!" exclaims the girl, sobbing as if she had mislaid her season tickets on matinee day, "I have driven him away!" and hastily pushing aside the honeysuckle, that clustered around the window, she goes out into the purple twilight that hangs like a mantle over the earth, and calls to him.

There is a rustle among the lilacs and syringas, and an instant later George had clasped her to his suspender.

"And do you love me after all?" he asks.

She laughs softly, as if she was bewildered by her sudden joy, and then her eyes fill with tears as she softly strokes his face.

"Yes, darling," is the answer, "and you must come to supper now. We are sure to have hot biscuits. I made them myself."

"You made them?"

"Yes," she answers, "I made them all by myself."

"Then," he says coldly, "you cannot love me," and starts for the gate. The girl follows him, and cries in a low, despairing wail for him to come back. But he does not heed her. On and on he goes, whistling suddenly she throws him, throws herself in drowning deep, when bathing with the very air for existence. "Happy" are forever.

He had stepped into a post-hole.

LAND POLICY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In a late issue of your widely circulated journal I find the following editorial paragraph:

"Agents of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company are now, and have been for some time, engaged in inspecting and classifying the lands of the company in this state and in Washington territory. All lands will be embraced in four or five classes, to each of which a fixed price will be assigned. In this way the company will get much more for its lands than by selling them in the haphazard way in which government lands are disposed of. The managers of the United States land office could learn some important lessons from any one of the land grant railroads. The systems adopted by the corporations are far in advance of that of the government, more just to themselves and more just to land purchasers. At the next session of congress should not be allowed to pass without a complete revival of the land laws."

Your recommendation that the next congress should pass a new land law and base action in reference to the management of the public domain similar to that recently put in practice by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, reminds many of your readers here, who are made [illegible] by bitter experience, and immediate contact with the workings of the system now in operation in eastern Washington.

With your permission your correspondent proposes to suggest some thoughts upon this subject. In the first place, free lands for the pioneer settlers of a new country have always been considered the true policy of all civilized governments. Our wise statesmen and philanthropists have always encouraged the dependent classes in crowded communities to "go west" and become independent.

Cheap lands have always been one of the strongest incentives to induce people to enter the faculty and social ties, and willingly endure the hardships and deprivations incident to all new countries. So thoroughly has this idea entered itself upon thoughtful statesmen that the sale of agricultural lands to other than actual settlers has entirely ceased, and it is within the range of possibilities that in a few years sales of lands to pre-emptors will be abolished, and all the public lands will be made a free gift to the homestead settler. May God speed the day when such an act may be recorded on the statute books of the nation.

And now, would it not be more wise for us to urge the converse of your proposition and insist that the railroad company, that you mention, shall adopt the long-tried and statesman-like policy of the general government rather than abandon a well tested and satisfactory manner of disposing of our lands, and substitute one the wisdom of which is questionable, to say the least. Let us look squarely in the face what would be the results if the new-found doctrine is adopted. We now have the register and receiver of the United States land office in each land district who receive filings on homestead and pre-emption claims and hear proofs of compliance with the laws governing the disposition of government lands, a plain and economical system. Under our new mode of proceeding we must have a general land agent and his score or two of assistants and clerks; a chief land examiner, and his assistants, clerks, etc.; then ten or twenty parties of land examiners, consisting of ten or more persons; then a corps of statisticians; bureaus of information, with their score or more of assistants; newspaper correspondents and other advertising agencies; then a horde of spies to watch the land examiners to see that land speculators do not bribe them, and then an equal number of detectives to watch the spies. After paying for this expensive machinery how much would the net receipts be from sales of land, over the good old system? It will not do to answer the question by saying that it would depend upon the price of the land, for that will be regulated, if ever at all, by the demand; and the more money received, the more cumbersome will be the machinery to handle it.

The effect of this system would be to take money from the settler and give it to a horde of favorites, without any increase of receipts to the government. The fact is we do not want the change; we do not want a horde of government [illegible] vampires and their wine suppers and their bacchanalian harangues. We can manage our own politics and parties much more satisfactory to ourselves than they can to it for us. We have just as much of that kind of element to manage as we care about, so please don't duplicate it on us. Our cry is, "Hold enough!" It is true some of the agricultural lands are worth more than others in the same district. For instance, if fifth rate land is $2.50 per acre, first rate land would be worth $10 per acre; at this difference ought to be placed to the credit of the pioneer settler who first leaves home and friends to encounter the hardships of a new and untried country, there to demonstrate its capabilities and ascertain the wants of men. He certainly is entitled to his choice of land at the minimum price.

We make no war on the railroad company or its policy. We are not members of that corporation, but we are members of this great republic; we are corporators in this government too, and when a great change is proposed which we think will work an injury to our general land system, we feel that we ought to be heard through the same channel that the proposed change is recommended. The proper disposition of the land grant by the railroad company is an open question. Many can scarcely think that it is subject to legislative restrictions. But it is not the intention or desire of the writer and state a policy for the railroad company, but thinking that a suggestion or two would not be treason, a venture is made on that sacred ground.

It is thought by some of our wisest statesmen, and there are found among the prominent leaders of the railroad company, that the land-grant was merely an incident to the great enterprise, given to the company as a basis of credit for the sale of their bonds to realize money to build and equip their road, and that their true policy would be to use it to encourage immigration and the settlement of the great northwest, and that the very best and surest way to do this would be to furnish cheap homes to migrating tillers of the soil and so far as the experiment has been tried, the history of the company is concerned, it has been a success.

Any settler induced to come to this country on account of cheap homes, becomes a gratuitous advertising medium. Their letters home are full of praise of the liberal policy of the company, the productiveness of the soil, the certainty of the crops, the motion of the railroad to tide water, the uniform and fixed price of their lands, found the way into all parts of the civilized world, and it did not cost the company one cent for all this advertising.

With these reliable assurances an intelligent and hardy yeomanry came flocking into this country with their families, in numbers unprecedented in the history of the Pacific coast, and they were not disappointed, for they found the prices and conditions covering the sale of land just as they had been informed. But a change has cast a gloom over the country has come; the settlers say that they cannot write to their friends afar off, advising them to dispose of their homes and come here, for the prices and conditions of the company's lands are too uncertain; hence the influx of immigration has fallen off from the 75 per cent. from that of 1881 and 1882.

If these deductions are true, we do not ask congress to change the good old land system, with its munificent results, for one that is without a redeeming merit to recommend it, especially when it enriches not the railroad company but takes money from the pockets of the poor settlers who need it to make themselves homes and gives it to those who are not of us, with us, or for us.

An Artemus Ward Letter.

George Hoyt, of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, has the following letter, received from Artemus Ward. Mr. Hoyt was then on the Cincinnati Times:

LOUISVILLE, March 16, 1861.

My dear George: I want you to do me a favor. In Cincinnati I relied on one of my men to save the press notices. He didn't. Will you collect them for me at once and send them to me at the Bates house, Indianapolis? Cut them out and send in a letter. Now, this is taxing your good nature, but you'll do it for me, Georgie? Won't you, Georgie? Do you know that you remind me more and more of the noble Romans? I don't know what all they were, but you remind me of 'em, you do, indeed. And could I have appealed to one of those noble Romans to cut out some notices for me in vain? I bet you. I guess not. Remember me kindly and affectionately to Watterson (I want his notice), Andy and Sterback. My business here is immense. Do you see the Journal notices? They are splendid. Go on, young man, go on. Deal kindly with the aged. Remember that we are here for only a little while, and that riches take wings and fly away. Intoxicate the shunning bowl. Support your county paper. Love the Lord and send me those notices. Write likewise. And now, kind sir, farewell! Farewell!

Missouri's Local Law.

Missouri, with her big democratic majority, makes no apology for passing a high license law and compelling saloon keepers to pay $1000 for the privilege of selling, or quit the business. In Ohio and Illinois the democrats are making a great ado because the retail liquor sellers are taxed at all. This is what the leading democratic paper of St. Louis, the Republican, says of the license law of Missouri:

It is wise, temperate and conservative, so there can be no sound objection to its enforcement. That it will probably compel a few who are now making a living at liquor selling to seek some other employment we neither question nor regret. We do not believe that it is at all necessary to the good of this community that quite eight hundred saloons should be maintained in it, and we do believe that the moral condition of the city would be improved and the happiness of the people increased if several hundred of its liquor shops could be closed.

On the Track Sure.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mr. Tilden is squarely on the track for 1884, with his rising tide of reform, and will receive a great deal of encouragement. The election of 1884 to remarks that there is nothing new about it, a kind of democracy. And while on this topic we might inquire what becomes of the statement of certain newspaper correspondents—who recently crawled through the picket fence at Greystone—that "under no conditions" would Mr. Tilden accept the nomination? Can it be possible that Mr. Tilden is disposed to confide in these gentlemen?

How the Civil Service Examinations will be Conducted in San Francisco.

EMPLOYES AT THE MINT LOSING THEIR PLACES

The New Civil Service Rules.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—In regard to the civil service examinations which are to be held in this city on August 1 next, John Patterson, one of the examiners, in a conversation yesterday stated that the system which has been adopted by the examiners here will not be open to the objection which has been brought against some of the eastern examinations. The lists of questions will be made up the night before the examination, so that there can be no possibility of an applicant getting an idea of the nature of the questions to be answered. All applicants are required to furnish a certificate of good moral character, signed by one or more reputable citizens. A long list of references does not help an applicant and no letters or other documents are accepted. It is held by the examiners that anyone applying to enter this contest ought to be able to furnish one good reference as a voucher of respectability.

The main feature of the new civil service rules is this: That it takes from the collector or the naval officer or other official the power to fill vacancies from the ranks of the political workers. Outside of a very few positions these officers must be guided in their choice of men to fill vacant places by the civil service system. When a vacancy occurs, say in the collector's office, he must select a man to fill it from the four applicants who have passed the best examinations and received the highest percentage. Their names are on file and are furnished to him, and he cannot go outside of this. It will be readily seen that this rule strikes at one of the worst abuses in office—the retirement of employes who have been this powerful backing to give their places to the favorites of congressmen who have done political dirty work in the hope of getting office. There will, therefore, be no object in the head of a department turning out any subordinate, except for cause, because he cannot favor a political friend by appointing one of his friends to office. In this way too, should a vacancy in a $2400 clerkship occur by death or otherwise, the collector's interest will be to see to it that the next best man in the department receives the place. Thus a system of promotion for meritorious service will be instituted and efficient men will not have the mortification of seeing politicians or personal friends of political heads placed over them. The newcomers will enter at the foot and work up through the various grades, instead of during their places to favorites as formerly.

The Political Ax at the Mint.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—The Chronicle says: Since the announcement of the removals at the mint the most reckless attacks in subordinate positions has been manifestly ill at ease. Through all the departments the effect of the motion that they are on their good behavior has been plainly perceptible in the actions of the employes. Many who formerly took no heed of official notice of tardiness are now promptly at their posts of duty. Several who would present themselves in doubtful condition as to sobriety now walk about with a somber aspect, sobered by considering the situation. The adjusters need not think that their department has been subjected to any special attack, though six of their number were the first to receive notices. Several male employes have also been notified that their services were no longer needed, and others will be discharged at the end of the month. The foreman machinist, A. Ehreb, will be relieved and Chief Engineer George L. Harris, whose employment heretofore has been light and very pleasant, will be called upon to attend to the machinist's duties as well as to keep up his own special work as engineer. One of the helper melters has already been removed, and an assistant assayer has his discharge. The present shaking up is not to end with the discharge of a few unfortunate subordinates. It is understood that a grand upheaval is to follow the first weak tremblings of the volcano of a total wrath.

Reunion of Harvard Students.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—The regular quarterly meeting of the Harvard club was held at the Palace hotel Thursday night. In the absence of President Horace Davis, John W. Taylor, first vice president, presided. About fifty members of the club were present—the smallest number that has sat down together during the existence of the club.

Professor Royce of Harvard, formerly of the University of California, was present. He spoke on the elective system as now established at Harvard, setting forth its advantages and disadvantages. He thought it far superior to the old system, and that it gave better results. More liberty than formerly is given to instructors, the college looking to results.

W. T. Reid, president of the University of California, stated that he approved of the liberty given to instructors. He spoke of the strength given him in his office by the club, and hoped that the time would come when a student could here obtain facilities for education as good as can be obtained east. "As far as we have already gone we are equal to the best of eastern institutions, and in some respects we are more advanced."

Dr. Pinkerton of Oakland read a paper on physical exercise required by professional men, and recommended the bicycle and tricycle.

Judge Hartwell of the Hawaiian islands was elected a member of the club.

There were present undergraduates Hearst, Barnes, Davidson and Kinsey of this city. Wm. A. Barnes addressed the club in behalf of the athletic association of Harvard, stating clearly its needs and asking for some assistance from the club. The members at once raised $60, which was paid over to Mr. Barnes.

The regular business having been disposed of, the club indulged in social converse.

Sent to the Penitentiary.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—John A. Kimball, the young man formerly a postal clerk, who was indicted recently by the grand jury and tried and convicted of forging or aiding to forge the name of Mrs. Sarah J. White as an indorsement on a bank check, was sentenced by Superior Judge D. J. Toohy this morning, in department No. 11, to imprisonment in San Quentin for the term of five years.

The judge, in passing sentence, said that he had seldom been so interested in a trial and so moved in sentencing a prisoner as in this case. He said that he had long known his father, General Nathan A. Kimball of Utah—a brave soldier and for many years an honored public servant. He had watched the career of the young man and had seen with regret his downward course. He commented briefly on the sad state of social life in which a young man of good stock, with the best advantages, should come to be sentenced for his crimes. Kimball listened quietly to the remarks of the judge and at their close was taken back to the county jail. The other indictment for forgery against him will be abandoned, and it is believed that the indictments found against him by the United States grand jury for robbing the mails will not be prosecuted as at first thought, as the loss of his term of sentence.

Verdict in the Abbott Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—The jury in the case of Charles Abbott, the young hoodlum who stabbed and killed James T. Daly, a Clay street bar-keeper, some months ago, was sent out yesterday afternoon and remained locked up all night. This morning they came into court, received their instructions and were again locked up. Coffee and doughnuts were served to them at intervals, and soon after noon they were taken out to dinner. About 3 o'clock this afternoon the bell rang and the bailiff soon came back with the intelligence that a verdict had been agreed upon, and the prisoner recommended for imprisonment for life. Judge Toohy was immediately sent for, and when he arrived a little later, the jury rendered their verdict to him.

The Lost Mooney Infant.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—Besides the publicity given by the circular of Chief of Police Crowley to the loss on Sunday, a week ago, of Annie Mooney, aged 4 years and 8 months, at the picnic of the Carpenters' union at Belmont, the father of the missing infant caused the circular to be read yesterday to the various congregations of the Catholic church as, in order that the fact of the loss might be more extensively circulated. No further clue has yet been obtained of the child, though Chief Crowley is very sanguine as to the result, while the police of San Jose, the sheriff of Redwood City and the people of Belmont are all exerting themselves to find the child. The union of the Carpenters' union of which the father of the missing child is a member, has offered a reward of $150, which, with the offer of the parents now makes a total reward of $300.

Suit for Taxes.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—Contra Costa county has brought suit in the United States circuit court against the San Pablo and Tulare Railroad Company to recover $2444.29 state taxes for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1881, and for $537.48 state taxes for the year ended June 30, 1882. The railroad property is assessed at $532,000. The same county has also brought suit against the Northern Railway Company for $1966 state taxes for 1881, and $100 for state taxes for 1882.

Newly Discovered Evidence.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—Justice McKee has granted Luke Carty a writ of habeas corpus, returnable before Judge Sullivan of the superior court forthwith. Carty was convicted of manslaughter in killing Peter Goetz on July 4, 1882, and was sentenced to imprisonment at San Quentin for eight years, and the petition for the writ is based on the ground of newly discovered evidence.

Death of an Ex-Assemblyman.

MRS. BENJ. SMITH'S CASE.

What the Rev. Mr. McKinstry has to Say About It.

TO THE PUBLIC: I have been a fearful sufferer for fifteen years, most of the time with what has been called Eczema or Salt Rheum, Psoriasis and Leprosy, and the like, and have always been told that there was no cure for me, and have been so discouraged that I had no cause for relief. I have been so badly afflicted sometimes that there was not the smallest spot from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet that was not diseased and as red as crimson. It would commence in small white spots, which had a silvery appearance, but were not deep, but if I attempted to heal them, or soon after, their first appearance, they would burn and run together until there was a complete dry, red scale, which would become so inflamed as to crack and look fiery and angry, and the burning sensation would be almost intolerable. I was at times so lame that I could scarcely get about, and could not dress myself without assistance. I have tried many remedies and have paid out much to a single instance to a physician, but have ever obtained only temporary relief. Although helped for a time, I soon relapsed again, to be as badly troubled as ever, and during the winter of 1881 and 1882 I suffered so much as to be entirely discouraged. Last June, however, I was advised by Elder and Mrs. L. C. McKinstry, who are well known in these regions, to try your CUTICURA remedies; and I felt somehow a little courage, from their favorable opinion of them, to try their virtue. About the second week of July last I commenced taking the remedies. My first experience was unfavorable, I thought, for my trouble seemed to be increased—the result of the RESOLVENT's driving the humors of the system to the surface—but I continued persistently to take the RESOLVENT internally and used the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, and within six weeks I began to see a permanent improvement, until now (October 1) I am about as good as new, and my flesh is as the flesh of a child.

MRS. BENJ. SMITH.

I certify that the above statement of my wife is correct, and I join with her in expressing my gratitude for the great benefit she has received.

B. SMITH.

I certify that the above statement is correct. Mr. Smith is a prominent man in this community, where he lives. He is a well known dealer in stock, and his statement with that of his wife is fully entitled to credit.

THE MONEY SHARKS

Since the man who lends money is undoubtedly a public enemy we cannot see why any sympathy should be wasted upon him. Our board of trade, in its talk about repealing the mortgage tax law, was sadly in error. The object of the law was to make the man who has money pay from three to five times as much tax as the man who has property in other forms. It serves him right. He has no business to be a shark or a Shylock. The man who is wicked enough to accommodate a neighbor with a loan deserves no consideration. If he takes a mortgage on land let him as a punishment for his turpitude pay a tax on a valuation three, four or five times in excess of the amount at which such land is assessed. This, by way of reprisal, may perhaps keep him out of the disreputable business of accommodating those who call for loans.

It is indeed, having the consequence; but here a new trouble arises. Complaint is made that the effect is to produce a "tight" money market. Of course it has that effect. Men who have money refuse to lend it. Nothing can induce them to part with it upon mortgage. These public enemies have shut up their strong boxes, every one. Where loans or mortgages have matured they are calling them in. This, although it illustrates the perversity of human character if indeed it does not furnish an argument in support of the doctrine of total depravity. But it is difficult to see what those of us who are outraged by such conduct are going to do about it.

Shall these public enemies be permitted to defeat the objects of a beneficent law? We trust not. There is a way to meet them. Plainly the mortgage tax law will be rendered worthless if this conduct is permitted to go unrebuked. Let us therefore have a supplementary law which shall compel those who have money, or are suspected of having it, to lend upon mortgage under penalty for refusal of sequestration of all the property they may have in sight. This would be a perfectly rational sequel to the mortgage tax law, and in full harmony with it. The behavior of the money lenders is preposterous and intolerable. Proper retaliation will bring them to their senses. It is plain that if they don't lend we can't tax, and the law will be a failure.

PREMATURE ENTHUSIASM

Jubilantly reviewing the prospect of through rail connection with the east, a Seattle paper remarks that soon "freight can be distributed to every town in western Washington without the risk of six hundred miles of ocean voyage." The advantage to the cities on Puget Sound of their water connection with San Francisco does not seem to be properly understood. Even when the Northern Pacific is completed, this water connection will be scarcely of less value than the railroad itself, so anticipated with so many hopeful expectations. Even if western Washington should never receive another ton of freight from San Francisco the open ocean way would be an advantage that it would serve as a check upon the railroad in the matter of freight charges. But much freight will continue to come into Puget Sound from San Francisco. Between the Northern Pacific and Central Pacific railroad companies there must always be some rivalry for business, no matter how many treaties or agreements are ratified between them, and all that part of the country along the coast will be disputed ground. The ocean rate north from San Francisco will be so light that, practically, it will cut small figure in the contest. Puget Sound will not at once and it may never be wholly supplied with goods brought over the Northern Pacific. San Francisco merchants, who now have a grip on the trade, will easily be able to hold it by meeting the eastern price with the Northern Pacific freight rate added, and this they will do by narrowing their margins of profit sufficiently to compensate for the ocean freight charge. Most of the business houses of western Washington are retail establishments that have long dealt with San Francisco wholesalers and many of them owe large bills in San Francisco. These circumstances will hold their business to a great extent at least.

And what is true of Seattle, Tacoma and Olympia is also true of Portland, Astoria and other points in Oregon. Our wholesalers who buy in the east will bring their goods over the Northern Pacific, of course, but many of our retailers will continue to buy largely from San Francisco, where their credit is established. To retain their business here the San Francisco wholesalers will have to cut down their prices, but this they will do rather than give up the trade altogether. Along the whole coast retail merchants will enjoy the advantage of competition for their trade by general markets, themselves supplied by competing railroads.

BACK INTO DARKNESS

Though petroleum is now more abundant and more cheap than ever, its prospective exhaustion is a subject of speculation in the country which produces most of it. Certain scientific gentlemen have been endeavoring to demonstrate through the journals of Pittsburg that the Pennsylvania oil supply must soon be exhausted. It is, doubtless, only a question of time, for as there must be an end to all fixed products which man consumes, so it is rational to conclude that there will be an end of oil. The savants make calculations as to the deposits of coal, iron ore and other metals and the stock in view having been approximated and the annual consumption ascertained, it is not difficult to predict when the supplies will give out. The timber supply, although capable of being lengthened out by the planting of forest trees, has also been a matter of grave concern to scientific calculators, but the masses of people take consolation in the fact that the deprivation will not come in their day. Old Dr Johnson looked at it in this way, and in one of his Ramblers said that men ought to rest in comfort in the conviction that the supplies of these materials were ample for their own time.

But there is a good deal of testimony which points to the conclusion that the supply of oil is quite limited, and it may be set down as certain that when the stock is used up there will be an end of it, since the crude article cannot be produced by any alchemy known to man. Professor Carll, who laid out and supervised the work of the Pennsylvania geological survey in the oil region, says no more oil territory is likely to be discovered. He does not predict early exhaustion of the supply, but thinks that no permanent increase can reasonably be hoped for. Professor Lesley, the state geologist, regards it as very probable that all the oil is confined to the oil regions proper and in this view he is supported by other eminent geologists and by practical oil operators. This is rather a gloomy prospect, and it would be an exceeding great hardship if the world had to sit again in the darkness of the flickering taper and the sickly tallow dip. But in electricity there are mighty possibilities, and long before petroleum is exhausted it may cease to be really needed.

The general manager of the Western Union says that the demand of the strikers that both sexes shall be paid the same wages looks like driving women from the ranks, for were the company to concede it, it would be to their interest to employ men exclusively.

It is claimed that the prohibitionists are waking the echoes in Iowa, and that the republican party, which committed itself to prohibition in its platform, will carry the state by the largest majority it ever obtained.

Half a million people often leave New York on a single Sunday, going on excursions. The amount paid by them for transportation exceeds $250 000.

A TIMELY PROTEST

The Ledger in a timely article points out to the council of New Tacoma that that city has saloons enough. It says truly that there can be no getting over the fact that with increased facilities for and temptations to drink, disorder and crime will proportionately increase, and, consequently, the cost of preserving peace and restraining crime will become heavy on the taxpayers in the same ratio. The damage to business property by the presence of saloons is well set forth, with the statement that one whole block in the best quarter of the best street is already almost taken up by drinking places. "The Ledger," it says, "has no wish to injure the prospects of any man engaged in a legitimate business but it would hold itself seriously to blame if it did not enter an emphatic protest against any further increase of saloons in the city. Those already established are amply sufficient for the needs of the community, and we very much mistake if they have not now in stock a supply of good (and bad) whisky, of good beer (and the compound of the tincture of aloes) enough to serve the increasing population for some time to come. Enough is enough, even of a good thing, and of some things enough is too much. Without saying anything regarding the propriety of permitting the sale of liquor in the city, the Ledger deems it expedient to utter a note of warning on the subject of restricting the number of the places within the municipal limits, where whisky may be sold."

These remarks are called forth by the fact that a place for another saloon is being fitted up, the proprietor taking it for granted that he will have no difficulty in securing a license. The council is reminded that with it rests the matter of granting licenses, and that there is no other resort; that it has authority, further, that it is its duty to decline to grant licenses if in its judgment there are enough saloons in the city to supply the demand or if the men making application are not in every way reliable. This is a point which seems never to have been thought of in Portland. The law provides to whom applications for license must be made, and gives power to certain officials to grant or decline, as their judgment may direct. There ought to be no question about the unfitness of such men as Joe Taylor, Frank Harrington and twenty others who might be named. The characters of these men and the character of the places they keep, are well known. The natural incidents of the whisky business in such hands are debauchery, outrage and even murder. Of course there should not be granted to them a privilege to be made an agency of disorder and crime. If the officials designated by law to protect the interests of the people would only exercise proper judgment as it is their duty to do, and where they know the character of an applicant for license to be bad, to refuse his appeal, a good measure of reform would be accomplished.

PERU AND CHILI

Peru, by continuing the war with Chile, is having no better fortune than before. Latest reports give an account of a severe battle in which the Chileans were again completely victorious. For nearly a year past the war has flagged. Part of the time it has been interrupted by truces and attempted negotiations. Peru has been no match for Chile in the contest but has continued the war rather than submit to the harsh terms which the victor required. The war has been in progress nearly five years. The misunderstandings out of which it grew were of very complicated character, arising in part from territorial claims, and in part from financial transactions. Peru precipitated the war by an injudicious movement for expulsion of the Chileans from the disputed province of Tarapaca, a desert country valuable chiefly for its nitrates, but containing about 40,000 inhabitants. A large proportion of these, Chilean born, were expelled from the province by a Peruvian army. What was worse, they received only a few hours' warning and were driven out in the most cruel and merciless manner. By this atrocious act Peru has merited the heavy judgment brought upon her, though Chile has been indefensibly severe in her measures of retaliation. But these severities on both sides are the inseparable attendants of a low grade of civilization like that which prevails in the South American states. Since Peru has brought upon herself a retribution so overwhelming the sympathy of the United States has been turning to her as it naturally does to the weaker and vanquished party. Already Chile has taken from Peru a tract of country nearly equal in size to the state of Indiana, and she continues the war for a cash indemnity which it is scarcely probable Peru could pay if she should agree to do so. It might be no great matter if the whole of Peru were conquered by Chile and annexed to her own domains. For Chile is not only much the more powerful but is by far the more progressive state. It is proper to say that the war on the part of Peru is now carried on by no organized government but by partisan leaders of more or less influence who appeal to the people to defend their country against the invader.

NAME AND FAME

General George Crook, whom our people well know, has been named for the presidency by enthusiastic admirers in the eastern states. There is one thing more than his army reputation conspicuously in his favor, to wit, he is an Ohio man, having been born near Dayton in 1828. He graduated at West Point in 1852, and after serving on the frontier, entered the war in 1861 as colonel of the thirty-sixth Ohio volunteers. After serving creditably in West Virginia he was transferred to the Army of the Potomac where he participated in the battles of South Mountain and Antietam. For gallantry here he was made a brigadier general of volunteers and lieutenant colonel in the regular army. In 1863 he was transferred to the army of the Cumberland, and after the battle of Chickamauga pursued and destroyed Wheeler's rebel cavalry, for which he was recommended for promotion. In 1864 he was again assigned to his command in West Virginia and was soon after made a brigadier general by brevet. He was in at the collapse of the rebellion, having played a conspicuous part in its closing scenes about Richmond. He was mustered out of the volunteer service at his own request, and, after a few weeks' leave of absence, again entered the regular army. His business since 1866 has been fighting Indians, and in that exciting field he has won high fame.

Oregon has acknowledged his services within her own borders by naming a county for him. This is immortality, though it may pass with those who first think of it as but a slight incident. Our counties—Linn, Lane, Marion, Douglas, Jackson, Curry, Benton, Polk, Baker, Grant, Crook—will familiarize these names through the long sweep of centuries to multitudes, who otherwise would never speak them or would never hear them only as faint and dying echoes. What man's fame filled the world in his day more than that of the great earl of Chatham? Where now is that fame's greatest and most enduring monument? The name of the city of Pittsburg.

It is not probable that immigration will add much to the 306,000 Jewish population of the United States. But the exclusion of five pauper families of Jews from Poland who arrived in New York recently, being sent to America by a charitable society in London, suggests a reference to the present condition of the Russian refugees who excited so much attention here a year ago. It is said that those of them who did not return to Europe in disgust are now prospering in different parts of the country, and by their industry and shrewdness they are demonstrating that thrift is a universal characteristic of the sons of Israel. In the United States it is a rare thing to find a Jew an inmate of a prison or of an institution of public charity. The cases will be exceptional, therefore, where Jewish immigrants can be justly excluded on the ground that they are likely to become a public charge. Respectable immigrants who are able and willing to work should be admitted whatever the sources from which they obtained the money to bring them over the ocean.

Portland continues to be the only important point in the United States which cannot get telegraphic service. All newspapers are served except those on northern Pacific coast lines. The strike therefore is effective only at Portland. This has been true from the first day of the strike till now. Of course the company is short handed at San Francisco and other places, else operators in sufficient numbers to do the business here would be sent on at once. If the strikers here do not want to return to work nobody has right to complain. But if they are holding out under the impression that they are helping those elsewhere they are clearly mistaken, because all other places are getting a fair service. This indeed is disputed, but the appearance of the newspapers from Omaha and Kansas City to San Francisco proves its truth. Only those journals published on the Pacific coast northern lines are deprived of news reports. This tells more plainly the actual situation of the strike than any amount of assertion or speculation.

Mr Trevelyan, during a recent debate in parliament gave some statistics to show that pauperism was declining in England. In 1871 the expenditure in behalf of the poor amounted to $15 100 000 for outdoor relief and $8 100 000 for indoor. In 1881 the outdoor relief had been reduced to $13 100 000, while indoor relief had only increased but slightly. Altogether there was a saving of $3 000 000 in the annual cost of pauperism and the number of paupers had fallen from 46 per 1000 of population to 30 per 1000. This is a very good showing but the figures would have been more interesting to American readers had the exact amount of decrease of pauperism attributable to "assisted" emigration been given. When it has become the policy of the government to empty her poorhouses and workhouses upon foreign shores it is not at all strange that the effects should be seen in the statistics of pauperism.

CITY.

New Catholic Church.—Advertisements have been published asking for bids for the construction of a new church upon the northeast corner of Third and Sherman streets, the erection of which is to commence as soon as possible. This new religious edifice is to be occupied by the Catholic denomination, and the necessity for its construction is found in an announcement made from the pulpit of the cathedral last Sunday by Archbishop Seghers. The city of Portland is hereafter divided into two parishes, with each parish in charge of a rector. The middle of Columbia street is the dividing line between the two parishes. Rev. J. Orth has been appointed rector of the new parish, and will reside for the time being in the building west of St. Mary's academy known as St. Joseph's hall or Orphan asylum, on Fifth street, between Main and Market. The chapel of St. Michael's college will be used as a temporary parish church until the intended new church shall be completed. To facilitate the construction of the contemplated new church permission has been granted to the rector of the new parish to solicit subscriptions and receive donations throughout the city of Portland until the building is completed.

One Robber Arrested.—On receipt of the intelligence of the robbery of the mail and express near Wolf creek Colonel Dudley Evans, superintendent of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express company, immediately telegraphed to Mr. Butler, the company's agent at Roseburg, to secure the services of ex-Sheriff W. P. Hogan and proceed to the scene of the robbery and investigate the matter. The robbery was committed eight miles south of Glendale, and the express box was found broken open with rock, the mail sacks cut to pieces and contents scattered around. The robbers were tracked back to Glendale and it was thought they had gone south from there. Butler remained at Glendale and Hogan took his trail back to Riddle. He telegraphed from that place to Mr. Evans yesterday morning that he had captured one of the robbers and found $1770 on him. He will probably arrive here with his prisoner this evening. Captain Tuttle swore out warrants in the U. S. court yesterday for the arrest of the robbers. There is said to be conclusive proof of the guilt of the man arrested. The penalty for robbing the mail, when the life of the driver is endangered, is imprisonment for life.

The Northern Pacific Express.—W. J. Footner, superintendent of the Northern Pacific express company, arrived overland last night via the Northern and is registered at the Esmond. When questioned by a reporter of this journal as to the probable movements of the company in the Pacific northwest, Mr. Footner said that he was not prepared to answer just now, but would be ready to make a statement early next week. It is reported from other sources that the company will establish service on all railways, steamboat and steamship lines centering in Portland, about the middle of next month. Heretofore the express business has been carried on as a department of the Northern Pacific's traffic. This month "The Northern Pacific Express Company" was incorporated in St. Paul with a capital stock of $10,000,000, as announced recently in The Oregonian's dispatches. The directors are Frederick Billings of Vermont, T. F. Oakes, Ashbel H. Barney and J. D. Adams of New York, and B. P. Cheney, William Endicott, Jr., and H. L. Higginson of Boston.

Imposing Ceremony.—The handsome chapel of St. Mary's academy of Portland witnessed, yesterday, great solemnities. Miss Martha Maning of St. [illegible], Or., was solemnly invested with the habit of the Order of Holy Names of Jesus and Mary and will be known hereafter as Sister Mary Agnes. Most Reverend Archbishop Seghers officiated, and was assisted by Rev. Father Metayer, the chaplain of the institution, and some other members of the clergy. Rev. Father Camp, S. J., briefly addressed the large audience in an earnest and pleasing manner. In the afternoon took place solemn benediction, before which Archbishop Seghers preached an eloquent sermon on the enduring virtue of holy perseverance. The love of the Order of the Holy Names is prosperous and rapidly increasing its usefulness. The schools under the charge of its members are universally patronized by our citizens, and they give all satisfaction to all.

Made an Exit of Time.—On Monday evening [illegible] Mr. Cilman of Goodsough & Co., corner of [illegible] and [illegible] was showing some articles to a customer, a man who had been in the store earlier in the day, and who professed to be anxious to do business at the counter for the firm, took advantage of an opportunity to open a showcase and extract therefrom one of the most costly revolvers. Of course he had no further business with the house and consequently availed himself of taking a walk at once. His absence likewise the revolver, was observed a few moments later, immediately search was made for him, but to no purpose. One of the firm describes him as being described as a large man, leading the firm to think that the party above referred to is one of the gang. He wore a dark suit, was of heavy build and apparently 30 years of age.

Organ Completion Delayed.—When Calvary Presbyterian church ordered its great organ in Boston, the builders advised that it would be less expensive to have the casings made here. So they sent drawings, and a contract for the work was let to Listmann & Müller. A large part of the work was done and this together with the drawings was burned in the fire last week. Telegraph communication being interrupted the board of trustees have ordered by mail, duplicate plans from Boston. Work of finishing is hence delayed, and it is not likely that the auditorium will be ready for occupancy before six weeks. The church will be formally dedicated during the session of the presbytery in the city next October.

Body Found.—While some boys were bathing at Columbia dock yesterday afternoon, one of them discovered the body of a man floating in the river. He swam to it and brought it to the shore. The coroner was notified and the body brought to the morgue. It had apparently been in the water eight or ten days, and was so badly swollen and discolored as to be almost unrecognizable. Deceased was a stout man about 5 feet 6 inches in height, clad in a pea jacket, dark colored cotton pantaloons, flannel shirt, [illegible] in front and brogans. In his pockets were a purse containing ten cents, pipe and tobacco and a pistol, but nothing to reveal his identity. There were no marks of violence upon the body.

They Did Observe.—Just because a prominent man [illegible] at a hotel is no proof that he did not come to town as several gentlemen who desired to call on Sir Alexander Campbell can testify. This distinguished attorney general and party of eighteen, including four ladies, went from the ocean steamer Wednesday evening shortly after her arrival, to Eppinger's and sat down to dinner, which had been ordered by telegraph from San Francisco. They enjoyed a feast from 6:30 until 11 o'clock, and then went aboard the Kalama boat. Sir Alexander remarked as he left the restaurant that the dinner was the finest he had eaten since he left home.

Reduced to Servitude.—A few days since the fact was noticed in The Oregonian that the once celebrated running horse Osceola, who in his palmy days was without a peer in the state, is now working in the stage between Skipanon and the Seaside. Another case of equine degradation is now brought to notice. The once famous short distance running horse Cotton-nose and Prince, raised by the late J. [illegible] of Polk county are now employed in hauling a [illegible] on the Washington and B street road. They are two of the best teams on the road, which proves that blood will tell.

The Great Athlete.—Donald Dinnie, Scotland's champion athlete and wrestler, sailed from San Francisco for Portland yesterday. On account of the telegraphers' strike he could not be communicated with in time to appear at the bicycle contest. He is matched, however, with Manager Stechhan's "unknown," and the wrestling contest will be made the event by itself and will be announced definitely when Mr. Dinnie arrives and the final papers are signed.

The Astoria Survey.—Messrs. G. Hurlburt, engineer in charge of the survey of the Astoria railroad, is in the city organizing a party to start out immediately to run and make a preliminary survey [illegible], estimates, etc., to a junction with a [illegible] survey from Astoria is in this direction. Work is to be pushed forward in this matter.

SHOOTING AFFRAY

A Man Who Insults His Neighbor's Wife is Killed by the Enraged Husband

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.

Linkville, Or. (via Ashland), July 26.—A man named Larkins was killed this morning by a neighbor named Weeden, after a short but bitter quarrel of words between the two. Weeden first fired at Larkins with a shotgun loaded with bird shot, knocking him off the horse on which he was riding at the time of the quarrel. Weeden then came up to the wounded man where he was lying on the ground, and beat his brains out with the butt of the gun. The homicide then went to Tule Lake where he gave himself up to the justice of the peace in that precinct. The trouble grew out of Larkins having used abusive language to Mrs. Weeden. Both men were residents of Klamath county. The shooting affray took place at Weeden's ranch, near the mouth of Lost river. An inquest by a coroner's jury will be held to-morrow over the dead body.

STILL HOLDING OUT

The telegraphers in this city who left their instruments in conjunction with their brother operators in the east still remain idle and express their firm intention to hold out until the Western Union has acceded to what they consider their just demands. On the brotherhood. The new operator from California worked hard and rapidly all day yesterday, but of course he could not clear up all the business accumulated since the strike, neither was he able to take any press report. Hence eastern and California exchanges again furnish the latest news.

Superintendent Lamb took some exceptions to the card published in these columns yesterday by the executive committee of the Portland Telegraphers' association in which it was stated that no information that the strike was a failure had been received here. When this was brought to the notice of the officers they immediately sent the following correction to this office: "We state emphatically that no authentic information has been received by the officers of the telegraph company on this coast that the strike in the east had been a failure."

BRANDING A FRAUD

The following card, which has been issued in reference to another matter, is self explanatory:

The fact having been reported to the striking telegraph operators, that a certain individual has been soliciting subscriptions for the strikers they desire to state that this person is a fraud, and that they have authorized nobody to solicit funds for their benefit.

By order of the executive committee Portland Telegraphers' Association.

The plow team at work on the hotel block yesterday fell into the excavation in the center of the block and hung head downward by the traces. The driver cut the traces and allowed the animals to drop to the bottom. They were picked up uninjured, again attached to the plow and the work proceeded as if nothing had happened.

STRANGE SUICIDE.

MISS MAY NEWTON, OF SPRAGUE, TAKES HER OWN LIFE.

Death by Strychnine—No Good Cause for the Rash Deed—Farewell Note to her Betrothed.

Shortly after noon Wednesday Miss May Newton, a young lady aged about 17, committed suicide by taking strychnine at the residence of W. H. Beeston, a gardener living on Twentieth street near O, whom she was visiting. At noon Mrs. Beeston left the house to carry dinner to her husband who was at work on the grounds of H. D. Green several blocks away, leaving the girl alone in the house. In an hour later neighbors heard screams as of some one in distress and cries for water. On entering they found Miss Newton on the bed in convulsions. She offered no explanation but called for water. On Mrs. Beeston's return about 1 o'clock the sufferer looked up into her face and exclaimed, "Oh auntie, a doctor." Mrs. Beeston hastened to the residence of Dr. Holt C. Wilson nearby and finding him in brought him to the suffering girl's bedside. On the doctor inquiring of her what the matter was she replied "Oh I have taken strychnine." The question was repeated once or twice, the doctor evidently at first doubting the young lady's statement. She insisted however that she had taken strychnine. "At what time did you take it?" asked the doctor. "At just half past 12," gasped the now convulsed girl. "But why did you take it?" To this she would vouchsafe no reply and the doctor, assisted by a faithful [illegible], did all in his power to counteract the now rapid course of the poison through her system but it had so thoroughly permeated the body that nothing availed in saving the girl's life. She died shortly afterwards in terrible agony. On a table near the bed was found a piece of paper in her handwriting bearing the words "May God bless you Charlie. God bless you. all."

Miss Newton is a daughter of Mrs. L. D. Newton who keeps the Sprague hotel. She came here about six weeks ago to visit Mr. and Mrs. Beeston who have known and loved her since infancy. They have no children and the girl has always been to them as a daughter, affectionate, kind and dutiful. During Miss Newton's residence at Sprague she was wooed and won by Charles Sproat, a very worthy young man employed as locomotive engineer on the Northern Pacific. Her mother objected to the marriage not on account of the young man's character but because she considered her daughter too young to wed. Some time ago, Mr. Sproat was appointed freight conductor on the O. R. & N. road and when this city and Dalles and Miss Newton made the visit here in order that she might meet her betrothed. She was in regular correspondence with her mother who strongly urged her to return home. Indeed, she evidently had been reading her mother's last letter shortly before she took the poison, as the letter lay opened on the bed. Several times in the past few weeks, she asked advice of her lover as to what course to pursue in regard to returning home and both concluded that it would be more peaceful to all concerned if they should get married as soon as possible and an appointment was made for Thursday evening (last night) to fix the day for the ceremony. Mr. Sproat arrived here on his regular run a train yesterday when the shocking news was brought to him. The mother was telegraphed for Wednesday night, and reached here by yesterday afternoon's train. The body will be buried in Riverview cemetery.

Mr. Beeston has had a bottle of strychnine in the house for the past year, having bought it as rat poison and used about half the contents and the remainder, properly labeled, stood upon a shelf in his box case. It was here that the unfortunate girl secured the poison.

THE HOLLIDAY AVENUE TROUBLE.

It appears to be erroneously supposed by many that the recent dismissal of cases in the matter of the Holliday avenue improvement was a final disposition of the matter in favor of the city. This was not the case, the action taken being merely upon the original writs of review. The matter came up again in the nature of a suit in equity, the arguments being made on Tuesday last and the cases taken under advisement by Judge Stott. In this condition the matter still stands. Moreland & Killin for plaintiffs, City Attorney Harrington and Judge Bellinger for defendants.

The deficiency, however, will doubtless be supplied at an early day.

BADLY BRUISED.

Mr. S. Stafford, who is engaged hauling lumber for Mr. Hogue, was the victim of a painful accident yesterday. While rolling off a load of lumber from the wagon, it fell before he expected and being in close proximity it knocked him down and fell on him, the weight falling principally on his left leg. Fortunately no bones were broken but severe bruises were sustained, and the victim will be a cripple for many days.

NOTES

Dr. C. H. Raffety has been confined to the house for two days with typho malarial fever.

F. P. Lind, second lieutenant of the East Portland city guards was serenaded at his residence night before last by the company on the occasion of his wedding.

Capt. J. Wilson, whose dwelling was partially destroyed recently will receive $88.40 from the North British and Mercantile Co. in which company the property was insured. The building was insured for $800 and the contents for $200 and the adjusters allowed $500 on the building, and $337.40 on the contents.

DURABLE STREET IMPROVEMENT

Permanent, Clean Roadways can be Made of Hard Burned Brick

Some time ago, Mr. Tyler Woodward of this city addressed a letter to the postmaster of Bloomington, Ill., asking information in relation to the plan adopted by the city for the improvement of its streets. In view of the dusty rough and unsatisfactory condition of our thoroughfares, the following answer to Mr. Woodward's letter will be of more than ordinary interest.

Your communication of 13th ultimo addressed to our postmaster, has been handed to us for reply. We would say that for many years our city like all western cities, made many unsuccessful efforts to pave its streets. Nicholson pavement was tried and failed. Macadam was probably still less satisfactory, as it made a rough street at best and requires constant repairs, probably costing 10 per cent per annum on first cost. N. B. Heafer the senior member of our firm, labored for a long time with the city council and the citizens to secure the adoption of his simple and practical plan. At first his efforts simply produced a smile, yet there were several clear-headed and true representatives of the citizens to whom the idea only needed to be suggested to meet with their approval.

His plan consisted in preparing a good foundation by excavating the street where necessary and then leveling or rolling the same, on top of which is placed a cushion of sand about an inch thick on which is laid a course of common brick (flat) in the same manner as ordinary sidewalk pavements are laid. This affords a splendid foundation for the actual road surface which is formed of hard, flinty brick laid edgewise and the pavement is complete. About seven years ago the first experiment was tried by laying one block in the street most frequented by all sorts of vehicles and it is simply stating the truth when we assert that not one dollar's worth of repair has been necessary on that block to the present time. This experiment was soon followed by others of a more extensive character and with like results.

Such pavements are durable, noiseless and readily cleaned. While the materials employed in their construction may be made at home. The brick should be very hard burned. There are many patented bricks for this purpose which for a time have their advocates but experience soon demonstrates that common brick are the cheapest and always readily obtainable. The mode of constructing the pavement above described is not patented, although the senior member of our firm was the original inventor of it. If it should prove beneficial to a large and rising public which will cause it to be adopted and tested in the proper spirit, we will feel abundantly repaid for the free gift to the American people of that which might have produced him a royalty. Yours, very respectfully

THE PARK BLOCKS.

Portland, July 26 1883

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Your editorial in this morning's issue advocating the improving and throwing open of the park blocks and other public squares by the city is very commendable. Of what use are the park blocks to the people in their present state? It will be many years ere the city park will be generally made use of by the masses. The park blocks are centrally located and within reach of all. Let the city have constructed a walk through the entire length of the blocks and have seats placed in different parts of them where men, women and children can find a place to rest in the open air. Let the city also lay out walks and erect seats in the plaza blocks in front of the court house. In their present condition of what use are they? Used only by those who want to make a short cut. I would particularly urge the improving of these blocks for the reason that there is a good prospect of us being favored shortly with a series of open air concerts by the Twenty-first Infantry band, stationed at Vancouver. I was told the intention of the band to give their first concert this evening between the hours of 7 and 9 but on account of the sudden death of Captain H. N. Pierce of the regiment, it has been postponed to some evening next week. These concerts will be hailed with delight by the music loving people and will be given during such hours that all can conveniently attend. Let us hope that the city fathers will do something towards the improvement of the plaza blocks. In the great strife for making and accumulating wealth we throw aside all thoughts looking towards the enjoyment of ourselves and fellowmen. From personal observance of the writer there is scarcely a city in Germany or France that represents the wealth and importance of Portland that does not have its beautiful and ornamented places where one can hear the most delightful music discoursed by the military bands.

THE GRANGERS.

Mr. H. O. Devries, Master Patrons of Husbandry of Maryland says: "I tried the wonderful remedy St. Jacobs Oil on a mare of mine badly crippled and a few applications restored her to soundness. I was attacked myself with rheumatism so severe it was agony itself. Three applications of the great pain-cure completely cured me."

Recorder D'Arcy is slowly recovering the use of his sprained ankle.

Prof. Frank Grubbs of The Dalles is visiting friends in this city.

The proceedings of the state teachers' institute has been published in pamphlet form.

The funeral of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Perry was largely attended yesterday.

Mrs. O. A. Waller, Misses Ella, Nora and Julia Chamberlain started for Mehama yesterday to spend a few days.

The circus troupe will take an extra train to-night and go right through to The Dalles without change of cars, showing there to-morrow afternoon.

The street parade given by Sherman's circus troupe to-day was quite presentable, presenting numerous new features and eliciting intense enthusiasm among the average small boys. The tent is pitched in the usual place near the court house building.

OLYMPIA NOTES.

[OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

Olympia, W. T., July 25

General Albert Pike is here on a tour of inspection of the Masonic lodges in this jurisdiction.

Mr. Horton is at work laying the pipes for conducting a large water supply into the city, and it is said that he is doing the work in a very excellent manner.

DISGRACEFUL SCENE.

Mrs. Sawtelle, dean of the Woman's college, San Francisco again made herself notorious this evening, by getting into conversation with the worthy mayor of this city, Dr. N. Ostrander and in the heat of argument she so far forgot her self-respect as to spit in the face of our chief magistrate, at the same time striking him in the face with her clenched hand. The affair created quite an excitement in town, and the remarks generally made in regard to the lady's conduct would not have been relished by her had she heard them. It is to be hoped that she will now leave town as her friends (especially of the female sex) are few and far between.

THE REASON

Sellwood has grown constantly in public favor is because of the actual intrinsic value of the property. It is the best site in or out of Portland for the average man who expects to earn his daily bread through his own exertion to get a home. He saves rent, and a hundred other expenses. He gets a home of his own. He gets into a healthy and delightful locality. He has just as good school privileges as could be asked for in [illegible] on the other side of the center. Portland costs only 5 cents passage on the company's boat. He can work his ten hours in Portland if he likes and reach Sellwood in the evening before his luckless chum, who pays $30 per month house rent out Twelfth street, walks out home. This is the reason Sellwood property is selling so rapidly. Lots are sold on installments of $10 per month.

HENRY HUBBARD PIERCE.

A Tribute to his Character and Fame by his Regimental Commander.

The gallant and accomplished officer and gentleman whose name prefaces this article died on the 19th of July, at Foster creek, Washington territory, at about the age of 42. His death will come like a personal loss to thousands of people who knew him personally or were familiar with his writings. He was born in the state of Connecticut, and was educated at Trinity college, Hartford. His intellectual training was of the most thorough character. He was an erudite mathematician and excellent linguist, and was more or less familiar with almost every branch of human knowledge. As a Latin scholar he was not excelled in America. He did not claim for himself such nice knowledge of this language as would enable him to detect, disguised by pedants, in the flavor, so to speak, of a sentence whether it had been written on the Tiber or in one of the provinces, but the splendid rendering which he gave the world of the Æneid from its Roman to the English garb leave no doubt of his mastership of the nicest subtleties of the Latin tongue. This work is a monument of patient toil and accurate scholarship. It has already become one of the English classics, and this not only because of its fidelity to the great original whose spirit it has preserved, but on account of the absolute purity of its English. An examination will show that Pierce's translation of Virgil's great epic contains a larger percentage of words derived from the Anglo-Saxon than is found in any other author, John Bunyan not excepted. Aside from its other great merits this alone will forever make it a favorite book with students who are seeking the source of the strength of the noblest language in the world—a language which is the native tongue of the two most "enlightened" and powerful members of the family of nations, and is destined to be the most universally spoken of any language there has ever existed. It may be said of Pierce's translation of Virgil and Horace (the odes of Horace are now in press), and the same remarks will be equally true of his original compositions in verse, what Macaulay said of the Pilgrim's Progress, "there is no book in our literature on which we could so readily stake the fame of the old unpolluted English, no book that shows so well how rich that language is in its own proper wealth and how little it has been improved by all that it has borrowed." His translation of the odes of Horace will place his name even higher on the roll of authors than did his rendering of Virgil. It may be safely predicted that the name of Henry H. Pierce is destined to an enduring place in literature.

The career of Captain Pierce as a soldier began in 1861, at the breaking out of the war of the rebellion. In May of that year he was sergeant in the Fourth Connecticut infantry, and was promoted through the various grades until he reached the rank of captain in February, 1862. In May, 1864, he was promoted to the rank of major in the First Connecticut artillery. As an officer Pierce was brave almost to temerity. On one occasion during the siege of Petersburg he was in command of a water battery on James river when it was assaulted by a fleet of rebel rams—three or four in number. With desperate courage and unflinching tenacity he held his position until he stood almost alone amid the actual wreck of his fort, and at last the enemy in sheer despair were compelled to withdraw, leaving the young captain master of the field. Such gallantry did not go unrewarded. He was thanked in orders, and preserved with laudable pride to the hour of his death the testimonials of his superior officers to his worth and bravery, and had the honor of receiving for his gallantry at the hands of his government, the "brevet of major for conspicuous gallantry," language seldom found in a commission. He also received two other brevets for gallantry on other fields. At the conclusion of the war Major Pierce returned to Connecticut, studied law and was admitted to the bar. But the spirit of the soldier was stronger than the love of Blackstone and Chitty, and in 1867 the major was commissioned a lieutenant in the army of the United States. His scholarship and general intelligence made him a desirable officer for detail in colleges as professor of military science and he had the honor of serving three such details in as many states. Pierce bore his full share of the hardships of his regiment in frontier service. He commanded a company in the memorable Nez Perce campaign in 1877, and made the famous march from Vancouver to the Missouri river. He was adjutant of the Twenty-first infantry for several years, which office he resigned to accept the position of professor of military science in the Pacific university. His full and faithful performance of the trying duties was acknowledged by his regimental commander in a most complimentary order. While adjutant he was selected by Gen. Nelson A. Miles, department commander, to command a scientific exploring party in the Cascade mountains. His report of this exploration was deemed so important that it was printed by order of the war department. This is an imperfect sketch of the soldier and useful life. To the dash and gallantry of the soldier Major Pierce united the refinement and elegance of the scholar and man of taste. In his death the army has lost a brave and accomplished officer, and literature one of its ornaments and votaries.

Posterity will be glad to know something of the inner life of this soldier-scholar who found leisure, and had the genius to enrich the literature of his country with many original compositions, and many translations of the two most eminent of Latin writers. He was modest, gentle and unobtrusive in his intercourse with men, seeking seclusion rather than public notoriety, and he was learning as a man what is accustomed to wear a garment. If he sometimes gave offense by a manner made irritable by great bodily suffering he was prompt in offering the most ample atonement. He was warm in his friendships and placable in his animosities and was one of the most affectionate of husbands and indulgent of parents. He was a firm believer in the truth of the Christian religion, and died in the hope of the fulfillment of all its promises. If Pierce could have selected the manner and place of his death he would have chosen to die the death of a soldier, at the post of danger and duty, surrounded by men wearing the uniform, to whom he was always kind, and considerate, and under the flag for which he had bravely fought and for which he had a reverence second only to his reverence for God. He did die at the post of duty. He was under orders to conduct a second scientific expedition through the mountains which lie between the Columbia river and British America. The state of his health was such that he was advised not to undertake a work so full of toil and exposure but he was accustomed to obeying orders, and so he went forth like one devoted to sacrifice, and his life went out before he fairly reached the threshold of his labors. He died as heroic a death as though he had stood in the water-battery on James river amid the thunder and splendor of battle.

HENRY A. MORROW,
Colonel Twenty-first Infantry.
Vancouver Barracks, W. T., July 4, 1883.

New York Wool Market.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The supply of desirable grades has been offered in such a manner as to prevent any appearance of anxiety or a lack of a market for manufacturing before buyers under a positive pressure, to realize. Holders, however, have missed no opportunity to secure attention towards their supplies, and were generally found willing to negotiate on about the basis of former figures, and are meeting with some success. Business for the week not only has shown some increase in value, but is of a more general character, and at the close the expression, as compared with the early portion of the month, is quite cheerful. Indeed, it looks as though the preliminary movement is about over. Reports of late clips of selections are commencing to bear fruit, and there is a reasonable basis for the hope that the period of extreme stagnation has passed. Europe sends nothing of special interest, but advices from the interior generally show a very firm, with a desirable portion of rather somewhat indifferently offered. Sales include 15,000 pounds scoured Oregon at 37½@70 cents; 2500 pounds spring California at 21½ cents; 3000 pounds scoured and 3000 pounds pulled on private terms.

Hop Market.

NEW YORK, July 22.—In hops all sales are small and the number is very moderate. As for the demand, there seems to be no prospect of any extended demand beyond calls from brewers for immediate use. Dealers are carrying but little stock and offer indifferently, but there are enough samples of inferior lots floating around to give the markets a weakish tone. Not over 20 cents seems obtainable for the best goods. Pacific coast, fair to prime, 18@20c.

TURNING THE TABLES.

Sending to the Pacific States for Tutors in Eastern Colleges.

The San Francisco Bulletin of a recent date has the following article on the occasion of Professor Royce, of the University of California, being called to a professor's chair in Harvard University. The Hawkins alluded to is Leander L. Hawkins, who has the management of real estate belonging to Capt. J. C. Ainsworth in this city:

About a year ago several bright young men who had been serving the University of California as instructors, and who saw no chance of being advanced to the grade of professors, left that institution, having received more encouraging offers elsewhere. Hawkins went to Oregon. Stillman went to Boston, Royce went to occupy a vacant chair at Harvard College, Sill resigned a professorship and went to Ohio, where he is becoming known as one of the brightest literary men of the day. Now comes Professor Royce, with the Harvard spirit in him, and gives notice that he is ready to examine all applicants for admission to Harvard. It will no doubt, in the strict line of his duty, examine a good list of candidates for that renowned institution. There is a sort of retributive justice in all this. Professor Royce, one of the most promising of all the young scholars of the country, a graduate of the University of California, did not find sufficient encouragement at that institution to remain. He attached himself to one of the oldest and richest colleges in the country, and now comes back to turn the current of young men seeking a college education, to Harvard. This is strictly correct. "They all do it"—that is, regents and those who profess to be the special friends of the University of California. It has been done for years. It is not likely that this current will be changed until the love of our home institution has been increased. It is an odd circumstance, however, that regents should have held office in this institution who sent their sons away to Harvard. There ought to be at least a thousand young men and women in the University of California. But there never will be until regents themselves are absolutely loyal to their own institution.

Dr. Royce belongs to Harvard. The University of California lost him, and has lost many another promising man. He will do his duty by putting as many young men as possible on the road to Harvard. Perhaps some of the regents may be inspired by the example to the putting as many young men as possible on the road to the college of California. By the way, how would it do to send one or two professors to Boston to examine young men for admission to our state institution at Berkeley?

"When I look at the quackery and speciosity of the times, I determine to cast all sides one to the winds," said Carlyle in a conversation just reported. "My dear fellow," said Sterling shortly, "I had no idea you had any to cast."

THE DANGER OF OVER-EXERTION.

A Stalwart Man Becomes Weaker than a Child and then Recovers his Former Strength.

Waterloo, N. Y., Observer.

In these days of rowing giants and athletic heroes find physical development is more observed than ever before since the time of the Athenian games. A man who shows the elements of physical power is looked up to far more than in the days of our ancestors possibly because there are fewer specimens of well-developed manhood than then. An emissary of this paper met a magnificent specimen of physical power a few days since in the person of Mr. A. W. McNames of Waterloo. His muscles, which showed unusual development, were as hard as wood. At his request the writer sought to pinch him in the arms or legs, but found it wholly impossible. A realization of what is meant by an iron man was fully made manifest.

"Have you always been so stalwart as this?" inquired the news gatherer.

"Not by any means," was the reply. "When a young man I was always strong and active, and felt that I could accomplish anything. This feeling so took possession of me on one occasion that I attempted to lift a box which four men found it impossible to move. I succeeded in placing it on the wagon, but in two minutes from that time I was unconscious, and remained so for hours; and when I recovered consciousness I vomited a large quantity of blood. From that day I began to grow weak and sickly. I believed that I had suffered some internal injury and experienced a general debility, which seemed similar to the effects produced by malaria. My back was very weak. I had no appetite, and at times loathed food. My lips were parched and cracked. My head felt as though it were entirely open at the top, and it pained me on the side intensely. In six months' time I had fallen away from 208 pounds to less than 175. I was in a most wretched condition. I was completely discouraged."

"What did the doctors say about you?"

"Almost everything. I consulted no less than six different physicians. They all treated me and none did me any good. At that time I was suffering intensely. I could not sit uprightly, but was obliged to rest in a cramped, uneasy position. I was compelled to urinate every five minutes, and I passed over three quarts every day. I was not living, I was existing."

One night (how well do I remember it!) my wife had put the children all in bed when the feeling came over me that I should live but a very short time. My wife and I talked matters all over and I gave the minutest directions as to what she should do after I was gone. I was not in a mighty condition by any means, for the doctor on leaving town the day following, bade me good bye, saying he never expected to see me again, for I was suffering with Bright's disease of the kidneys in its last stages. Within the next few days more than twenty friends came to bid me good bye. Among the number was Dr. John L. Clark. He asked me what I had used in the way of medicines. I told him. He then recommended a remedy of which I had heard much, but about which I was very skeptical. If faith were an element of power it certainly was lacking in my case."

"And so you did not try it?"

"On the contrary, I did try it, and to my surprise it seemed to go to just the spot. Indeed, it was the most palatable thing I had taken into my mouth for months. I relished it."

"And did it cure you?"

"Do I look as if it did?"

"Yes, indeed. What was it?"

"Warner's Safe Cure."

"A proprietary medicine?"

"Of course. What of that? I suppose I once had as great a prejudice against advertised medicines as any one could have. When I was studying medicine at Ann Arbor, Michigan, I used to vow with the rest of the class that we would fight all such remedies at all times. When a man comes down to the last hour, however, and bids his wife and friends good bye, such bigoted prejudices as these all vanish, I can assure you, and any remedy that can cure is gladly welcomed."

"And how have you been since then?"

"As well—or better, than before."

"Do you still exert your strength?"

"Certainly. But I do not over-exert, as formerly. My strength is increasing every day, and my health is number one. I know that my life was saved by Warner's Safe Cure, and I believe it is the best medicine that was ever compounded by any chemist or physician. I am willing the doctors should sneer at me for such a statement if they choose, but I have proven its truth, and am prepared to stand by it."

The above experience should be of great value to all who are suffering. It shows the deceptive nature of this terrible malady; that all symptoms are common to it, and that there is but one way by which it can be absolutely avoided.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

THURSDAY, July 26, 1883.

The telegraphic situation has not at all improved; indeed it is to-day worse than for any time the past seven days. Not a word of commercial report has been received since 1 A. M. yesterday, and that was what should have been through the 24th inst. Possibly something may be had to-night, yet it is uncertain. Tuesday's markets, the latest received, report the foreign grain market steady with values firm at recent advances. New York is unchanged, while Chicago is lower. San Francisco is firm with a good business, but freights are quiet and hardly steady.

Last night's steamer brought 990 sacks oats, 1050 sacks ground barley and 250 sacks bran, as also a lot of potatoes, onions, etc. These importations are necessary to meet a demand that home product utterly fails to do. Some green apples from White Salmon sold for $1 50. They were very green but sold readily.

We are receiving some new wheat from eastern Oregon and samples of new valley. From that received the new crop is considered to be of excellent quality, and this will generally be the case. In about two weeks a very free movement may be looked for. Vessels due have not arrived, but the first southerly winds cannot fail to hasten the arrival of half a dozen.

In freights there is nothing doing. Exporters have secured about all the tonnage they care to handle for the rest of the year, and we fail to learn of any inquiry for tonnage. On the other hand there is little offering openly, and owners will not concede rates. The Antoinette, now due here, is said to have a lumber cargo outward from the Sound.

TONNAGE STATEMENT.

In port, loading	2,975
In port, engaged	1,335
In port, disengaged	14,161
Loading for this port	4,490
Due July-August	6,353
Due August-September	10,189
Due later on	41,979

Wheat is in no business at this time, but we quote valley nominally at $1 65. Probable opening prices are still uncertain. It is conceded that millers will be slow buyers and values will likely be unfavorably affected in consequence.

Flour in quiet trade, and values can hardly be called steady except for standard brands. The outgoing Alaskan steamer will call for large shipments. None is now going forward to San Francisco, but there is a vessel loading for Liverpool.

The salmon season closes with this month; doubtless the canners are glad of it. For two or three weeks more fish have been caught than could well be handled. The output for the season will exceed that of last year by 30,000 to 50,000 cases. Domestic shipments since April 1 have been 107,630 cases; destroyed by fire, 11,000 cases; foreign shipments, 117,375 cases; in vessel to New York about 40,000 cases, or a total of 276,005 cases. The northern pack will be large, and some of it is already coming forward. During the early part of the season Columbia river canners had very little margin for profit, but toward the close the business cannot but have proved satisfactory.

Mill feed and oats have been in light supply but more is being received from California, and values can go no higher. Hay is in good supply, with loose selling at $16@18. Bales bring a slight advance. The crop of hay, oats and barley east of the mountains has been a good one and that section will not draw from us as it did last season.

Potatoes steady with a few old on hand that move slowly. New are in ample stock.

Dried fruits firm at full prices. California continues to send us supplies of some varieties.

Chickens in larger receipt and sold to-day at $7 for old and $2 50 for spring. Eggs are in light receipt at quotations.

Cured meats firm for choice. Stocks while large include considerable ordinary to inferior.

Wool in steady business without change in quotations. Receipts mostly go forward to San Francisco. The situation has developed nothing new.

Stocks of rice are getting low, but a cargo is near at hand. Sugars have been in larger receipt but values are unchanged. Grain bags weak.

Receipts for July to date have been 6835 ctls wheat 13,301 bbls flour, 4624 ctls oats, 2605 ctls millstuff, 1,671,005 lbs wool, 71,587 lbs hides, 235 pkgs butter, 47,027 doz eggs, 717 bxs fruit 910 bls hay.

The Oregon took on 746 sks (196,980 lbs) eastern Oregon wool, 146 sks (38,924 lbs) valley wools 1900 sks flaxseed, 40 bbls salmon, 10 flask, quicksilver, 130 gr hides, 1 bl deerskins, 90 sheepskins, 1 cs 1 bls flannels, 10 cs 19 bls blankets, 7 cs cassimeres, 2 bls blanket lints, 30,600 lath, 3716 ft ash lumber. $38,648 treasure.

For Astoria she had 22 cs cigars, 5 pkgs tobacco, 83 sks feed, 7 pkgs fish, 100 bxs 84 sks pig tin, 30 cs crackers, 2 tcs hams, 34 pkgs spice, 2 bxs butter, 2 cs cheese, 13 cs canned goods, 10 bls meat, 1 cs prunes, 80 mats rice, 10 kgs pickles, 253 sks salt, 10 bxs soap, 1 pkg tea, 6 sks coffee, 35 bf 13 bbls sugar.

At a late hour this evening our commercial report came through and dates are now even.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, etc., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City.

NO REST DAY OR NIGHT.

In the Fall of 1875 my sufferings were terrible. I was swollen to such proportions that I feared my limbs would burst. I had the best medical talent obtainable and at the worst stage of my illness, when my husband and many friends had given me up to die, the late Dr. John Woodbury made a thorough examination of my water, and pronounced my case acute kidney disease, bordering on Bright's disease, and accompanied by gravel, and recommended the immediate use of Hunt's Remedy. At this time I was suffering most terrible pain in my back, limbs and head, and could find no rest day or night for weeks, and I was growing weaker daily until this kind physician ordered me to take Hunt's Remedy. Before taking half of one bottle I commenced to improve, and after taking six bottles was entirely cured. This was nearly eight years ago, and I have had no return of the disease. I have recommended Hunt's Remedy to others in similar cases, and it has never failed to cure. I have also used it for sick headache and found it a sure relief. I think it the best medicine made, and cheerfully recommend it to all.

MRS. W. H. STILLSON,
No. 16 Tyler st., Boston, Mass.
April 18 1883.

A WELL KNOWN MAN.

Hunt's Remedy having been recommended to me for kidney and liver complaints, I purchased some at the "People's Drug Store" and used it in my family, and found it to be a very valuable medicine, and I gladly recommend it highly to my friends, knowing it to be beneficial to those troubled with kidney or liver disease.

Respectfully yours, ELISHA NOYSE.
April 14 1883. 61 G. st., So. Boston, Mass.

A LAST MANUFACTURER.

I have used Hunt's Remedy for the kidney complaint, and having been fully restored to health by its use I can testify to its value.

Daily I recommend it to some one of my friends all of whom I know have been benefited by its use. Gratefully, GEO. P. COX.
MALDEN, Mass., April 23, 1883.

MERCURY.

Has been more destructive to human health and life than war, pestilence and famine combined." So said a distinguished writer many years ago, and it is as true to-day as then. The poor victim of Blood Disease is drugged with Mercury to cure the malady, and then dosed with Iodides to cure him of the Mercurial Poisoning; but instead of any relief, the first breaks down his general health and makes him a cripple and the other ruins his digestive organs. To those afflicted in this way Swift's Specific is the greatest boon on earth, and is worth more than its weight in gold. It antidotes this Mercurial Poison, tones up the system and brings the sufferer back to health and happiness. Every person who has ever been so treated should by all means take a thorough course of this remedy.

J. PEKKRONY, LLE, Twiggs Co., Georgia.
Five years ago I found on my plantation a colored man who was badly diseased. He stated that five years before he had contracted a vile case of Blood Poison, and had been treated by many physicians all failing to cure him. I treated him with Swift's Specific, and in a short time he was sound and well, and has not had a symptom of the disease since.
D. M. HUGHES.

"One gentleman who had been confined to his bed six weeks with Mercurial Rheumatism has been cured entirely, and speaks in the highest praise of S. S. S. CHILES & BERRY, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Wistar's Balsam.

I. W. VAIL & SON, Forestown, Cal., write: "We consider WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY a very reliable preparation. It gives satisfaction to our customers, and we do not hesitate to recommend it."

J. E. PUTNAM, Willows, Cal., says he regards WISTAR'S BALSAM as one of the very best remedies in his stock.
